Abstract	With regard to the assumed balance in the relations between Iran and the Gulf States, it remains a question going on in the mind of the researcher as to whether it was possible, in terms of scientific methodology, to talk about a balance in these relationships. There is no doubt that strength variables included in these relations allow to this party or the other, from time to time, to get margins for maneuver and to achieve preponderance here or there depending on the impact of these variables negatively or positively on the opposing party or the party concerned.
