Thesis Title	The problems of political structure in Arab republic regimes
Year	2011
Abstract	The dissertation deals with the analysis of the nature of the political structure of Republican regime in the Arabian district to acknowledge and expose its role on the level of ruling crisis that the political life suffers as a direct reflection or a fruit including institutional and constitutional problems . In spite of all the reformation attempts and political modernization the Arabian Republican regime did not construct a modern state basis through exposing its political structure in front of political and sociological power requirements to contributing in the political process. Its instruments and techniques remain closed and based on hegmonical practices while outwardly it took the shape of democratic practices , this makes the basis of the state and its political harmony suffers political failures due to non matching on the origin and rules of real democratic practices .
